KENTUCKY APPROVES

Kentucky legislators, expressed faith in the press of their State last week by approving a bill to protect newspaper men from divulging a news source.

This is the fifth State to approve such legislation. The others are Alabama, California, Maryland and New Jersey. But there are still forty-three other States which have yet to enact a press confidence bill. In many of these States the politicians are too deeply entrenched to allow what they smugly call a "special privilege" to the press.

Hypocritically they invoke the standard works of legal experts as the reason for opposing such legislation. They even go so far as to express a pious shudder at the thought of the irresponsible and sensational stories which would be published if an editor or a reporter were granted immunity.

Fortunately, the press of the United States is a responsible institution. It will not tolerate anybody who will take unwarranted liberties with his profession. And for the few exceptions who may run away with their emotions in a frenzied attempt to boost circulation, there are the libel laws. The press-confidence bill does not render these laws null and void. They still stand, ready to check and punish if necessary the editor or reporter who avoids the truth.

There is much spadework to be done. The public must be informed that the press-confidence movement is not based on class distinction. It is discriminatory only in that it would single out the wrongdoer in the community. If any benefits are to result from such legislation, they will be for the publication.

No Headway In Peddler Banishment

No action will be taken by the council, relating to the adoption of a peddlers ordinance, until after the supreme court has decided a Santa Barbara case. This was decided by the council last evening after an extended discussion of the ordinance that was presented for consideration by City Attorney Tom Carlson.

The butcher, the grocery man, the creamery and milk man and the merchants association objected to the sample measure as being too drastic. Carlson told the council that it could not adopt an ordinance fixing a license for outside business men higher than for inside merchants, and when he submitted the sample ordinance he thought it was just the thing the local business men wanted to bar out peddlers from the outside. Now, he said I find that about everyone is of the opinion it is too drastic. I am satisfied the council desires to conform to the wishes of the local merchants, but as their attorney I will not advise them to adopt an ordinance that I know will not stand the test of the courts. The sample ordinance has already gone through the courts and will stand up.

When A. Hoefler of the bakers association said he thought if the city would get busy he could dress a proper ordinance, Carlson immediately got to his feet and said he resented the inference that he had not been giving any thought to the subject. "As a matter of fact," said Carlson, "I have put in a great deal of work on this matter. I have secured ordinances from many cities, and whether the bakers, the grocers, or any other class of men like it or not, I want to say right now, that I do not propose to recommend to this council the passage of any ordinance that I feel cannot be enforced."

Those who spoke against the "sample" ordinance were A. Hoefler, baker, G. Murphy of the Golden State Creamery, L. A. Thomas, grocer, L. R. Jones, peddler, and Sam Hoosen, automobile.

U. S. Jurists Is Ordered Impeached

WASHINGTON, March 2.—UP—The House tonight approved a resolution to impeach Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter of the southern district of Florida on charges of misbehavior, high crimes and misdemeanors in office.

The vote came after five hours of debate on the case, brought up by the house judiciary committee, during which Ritter was characterized as a "tyrant" and a "dictator."

The action sends Ritter's case to the Senate, which will sit as a trial jury to hear the charges as presented by a group of managers from the House. Ritter is charged with granting exorbitant receivership fees to A. L. Rankin, his former law partner, and with accepting $4500 from Rankin.

Ritter and his wife listened to the debate from a front row seat in the gallery.

WILL FIGHT
After the vote was announced Judge Ritter declined all comment except to say he would "fight the case through." He said he had no immediate plans.

The vote was announced as 181 to 146.

Only 11 times in United States history has the Senate tried impeachment cases. The most recent was that of Federal Judge Harold Louderback of the northern district of California in 1933. The most celebrated was the impeachment trial of President Andrew Johnson in 1868. Both resulted in acquittal.

Two Richmond Residents Hurt In Auto Crash

Two Richmond residents were injured in an automobile accident near Hayward on Sunday afternoon, it was learned yesterday.

John Coakley and Miss Norma Case, well known local residents, were injured. Coakley sustained head injuries while Miss Case suffered from cuts and bruises. Coakley is in the Richmond Cottage hospital.

According to reports received here, Coakley was driving and skidded into a bridge. The machine was badly damaged in the crash.

The Calmar freighter, Yorkmar, docked at the Parr-Richmond outer harbor terminal Sunday shortly before noon.

The vessel, which sailed from Baltimore, is loaded with steel for a local industrial plant.

GASOLINE PRICES CUT IN BAY AREA

SLASH OF 2C IS MADE BY STANDARD OIL

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2.—UP—Standard Oil company of California announced tonight that decreases in the prices of its three structure of retail gasoline had been approved. The reductions will be effective tomorrow.

Officials of the company said the reductions were "to meet competitive conditions and to establish a uniformity of price levels, which competitive practices have distributed."

The new reductions announced are:

First and second structure gasoline—San Diego and Santa Barbara, 1-2 cent per gallon; San Francisco, Oakland, San Jose, Bakersfield, Fresno, Stockton, Sacramento, Phoenix, Ariz., Medford, Portland, Walla Walla, Tacoma, Seattle, Spokane, Ketchikan, 2-1-2 cents per gallon.

Third structure gasoline—San Francisco, Oakland, San Jose, Bakersfield, Fresno, Stockton, Sacramento and Phoenix, 2 cents per gallon. Reno, Medford, Portland, Walla Walla, Tacoma, Seattle and Spokane, 2 1-2 cents per gallon.

Officials also announced that readjustments had been made in wholesale prices to the effect that the differential to exclusive dealers will be 4 cents per gallon on "ethyl" and regular gasolines, and 3 cents per gallon on third brand gasoline; and to non-exclusive dealers 3 cents per gallon on all grades of gasoline.

City Signs Contract On Wharf Deal

As the result of the adoption of an ordinance by the council at its meeting last evening, by which the mayor and city clerk is authorized to sign a new lease with the Parr Terminal Corporation, it is believed better times are in store for the harbor of this city.

The new lease takes in 88 acres of land near Point San Pablo, and to return the Parr Corporation to the city, the wharf and other property in that locality.

Under the lease Parr will pay to the city 25 per cent of the net profits, and in addition will maintain the warehouse and wharf in good condition, and also pay the cost of keeping the channel at a proper depth.

At the suggestion of Councilman A. B. Hinkley, Fred Parr was asked to make a few remarks.

"First," said Parr, "I want to thank the council for its action, as I feel the city is getting a good bargain. Your prompt action is appreciated as I expect to take a copy of the lease away with me this evening. In order to show to prospective industries, just what the setup is in this city and what Richmond has to offer them in the way of shipping facilities, I feel the city has a good lease. It was finally drafted after long negotiations with your city attorney, city manager, and city engineer. It has been worked out on a basis that I think will be satisfactory to everyone. True, under its terms, it will cost us more money to operate, but with the co-operation of the people of this city, we will get more business and as a result will make more money in the long run."

Son Of Car Crash Victim Faces Charge

Two 14-year-old San Francisco boys—the son of a man who was killed last week in an automobile accident here—are in the Alameda city jail awaiting action on charges of automobile theft. They will be turned over to Alameda county juvenile court authorities.

The two boys are Kenneth Hansen and William Guardino.

The Hansen boy's father, Henry Hansen, died from injuries suffered a few days ago when the car he was driving struck the front of the Miravite pharmacy on San Pablo Avenue. Kenneth and the Guardino boy arrived in Richmond a couple of hours later to view the body of Kenneth's father. The mortuary attendants discouraged this at the time and requested them to call back a little later.

They then went to Albany where they picked up a bicycle, according to (Continued on Page 3)

Realtor Killed, Girl Injured In Albany Accident

ALBANY, March 2.—Chris Oswald, 61 year old realtor, was instantly killed, and Faith Catherine Caffney, 19, of 1610 Sixth street, Oakland, sustained severe injuries in an automobile accident here this evening.

Oswald was killed when he was crushed between his car and a light pole. His parked machine was allegedly struck by a car driven by Miss Caffney.

According to police Miss Caffney and a companion, Jean Hoosen, 20, 1525 East Sixteenth street, San Leandro, were returning from a beach party at Richmond when the accident happened. The Caffney girl sustained bad cuts and bruises and a fractured hip. She is at a local hospital in a serious condition. Miss Hoosen was not injured.

BREAK TRY PREDICTED BY WRITER

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2.—UP—A plot to blow-up two administration buildings and one cell block housing 1,500 men in San Quentin prison was declared in existence tonight by Don Castle, former inmate, in a copyrighted article appearing in the San Francisco Chronicle.

Prison "gangsters" maintain a reign of terror and violence within the prison and 4,000 of the 6,000 inmates are under the domination of 2,000 hardened criminals, the article said.

SERVED SENTENCE
Castle served 17 months in the prison. A former Sacramento editor, he was convicted on a bad check charge, involving $10.

Castle said that a written plan of the plot to blow up the prison buildings was concealed inside the prison. He said that these involved in the scheme expected to gain their freedom during the chaos such an explosion would cause.

Castle said the convicts have access to ingredients for manufacture of nitro glycerine and ammonal, two powerful explosives. He also charged that caches of prison-made revolvers and other weapons are scattered throughout the overcrowded prison.

HOLAHAN IS MUM
SAN QUENTIN, March 2.—UP—Warden James B. Holohan, who will retire March 31 as chief of San Quentin, tonight declined to comment on reports of a plot to dynamite at least three prison buildings in an escape attempt.

"I have nothing to say at the present," he told reporters.

Salary Claim Presented By Fred Prosser

Two claims of former City Clerk Fred J. Prosser for $75 each for salary were laid over for one week by the Council of El Cerrito at its meeting Monday night.

The claims were referred to City Attorney T. H. DeLap to see if Prosser was legally entitled to a month's salary while he was out of office before tendering his resignation.

Councilman Louis Navallier said he did not object to paying one of the claims as he thought Prosser was entitled to a two weeks' vacation, but did not think the other claim should be paid.

Comments Made By Courtroom Audience Draw Ire Of Carlson

A jury has heard the story of Mrs. Ruth McCord—why she put in a claim to the county—alleged by the prosecution to be fraudulent, and presented with the intent of defrauding the treasury of Contra Costa county out of the sum of $68.98—and by her claimed to be reimbursement for moneys expended on behalf of Mrs. Ida Jackson, the aged woman whose diamonds have caused all the trouble; her employment in Los Angeles after she resigned from the social service department and the loss of it through letters sent to her employers from this county; what is termed her flight the night she was indicted but prior to the return of the true bill, was part of the narrative told from the witness stand yesterday afternoon in Judge A. F. Bray's department of the Superior court in Martinez.

There were other developments of intense interest the third day of the trial. Dismissal of two counts of the three in the indictment leaving only the second count to face charging her with the presentation of a false and fraudulent claim against the county, and the denunciation by Attorney Thomas M. Carlson, of counsel for the defense, of certain people in the courtroom, who since the beginning of the trial have openly sneered at the defendant and made derogatory remarks audible in parts of the courtroom. Judge Bray immediately instructed the bailiff to take summary action in event that there was a repetition of the offense.

MAKES GOOD WITNESS
Mrs. McCord made a good witness in her own behalf. She told her story under the guidance of Attorney Carlson and with apparent frankness answered the questions of Deputy District Attorney Rex Boyer under cross-examination. Throughout she maintained that she had not presented any claim against the county, this being technically true, as the claim bore the signature of her chief assistant, Mrs. Iona Booth and was sworn to by her and was approved by Mrs. McCord. Had the defendant not tried to evade one question in particular, she would have made a better witness. The interrogatory in question was whether it was not the practice and a requirement that when a claim was presented to the county for money expended on its behalf it had to be accompanied by a receipt or voucher. The witness professed not to fully understand the question, and would not give a direct answer to it. While at the head of the social service department she had passed upon many hundreds of thousands of dollars in claims and it looked as though she would have been thoroughly familiar with the procedure.

TESTIMONY RULED OUT
An attempt was made by the defense at the opening of the afternoon session to prove through Harry Court, a Martinez jeweler that Mrs. McCord in November, 1934 had submitted the Jackson jewels to him for appraisal but objections to every question asked (Continued on Page 8)

Variety marked the activities of the Richmond police department's theft detail yesterday.

The first report made during the day was by H. Leahy, who resides at the foot of South Fourteenth street, told police that some one stole a Towboat from his dock. Police investigated.

The next report was made by Antonio Martinez, living at 20 Standard avenue. Martinez reported he left his good clothes on a chair near the window in his bedroom and went for a walk. When he returned, he found the window had been raised and $58 in cash had been taken from his leather wallet. There were no clues.

The final theft reported was by H. McKee, 239 Fifth street, who told police that a blanket valued at $2 was stolen from his car when it was parked on Macdonald avenue near Fifth street.

N. Y. STRIKE PEACE PLAN IS REJECTED

NEW YORK, March 2.—UP—Striking elevator operators—slowly paralyzing New York City's business and social life—rejected Mayor Fiorello La Guardia's arbitration proposals tonight.

With a state of emergency declared by La Guardia, the strike leaders stalked out of city hall, preparing to call out thousands more of the men and women who operate elevators and fire furnaces in the towers of Manhattan. La Guardia persuaded them to agree to return at 10 A. M. tomorrow, but meanwhile the mayor expressed grave fear for the health and safety of 7,000,000 New Yorkers.

BLOOD FLOWS
Blood was spilled as the battling service employees union widened the strike area until it covered most of Manhattan Island. No deaths were reported from the centers of violence, but noses were bloodied and heads cracked.

Twenty-three men were arrested (Continued on Page 5)

Kistlingbury of the Producers and Molozza of the losers tied for high point honors for the evening with 13 points each.

In the second game the McRackens team defeated the Wolfe Jeweler club 40 to 29. The Jewellers started out fine, to trail 18 to 16 at half time. In the second half, however, the McRackens team turned on the heat and romped through the Jewellers.

OLD PEOPLE find way to keep breath wholesome
Halitosis (bad breath) quickly yields to Listerine, safe antiseptic and deodorant

Either because of stomach disturbance, food fermentation, or the wearing of false teeth, old people frequently have halitosis (bad breath). No wonder others consider them a nuisance.

But now Science has found that the regular use of Listerine will often overcome offensive mouth odors due to the fermentation of food bits of food on mouth, teeth, or dental plate surfaces.

This safe antiseptic and quick deodorant works quickly. It cleanses mouth, teeth, and gum surfaces. Halts fermentation and putrefaction, a major cause of odors, and thus combats the odors themselves.

Try using Listerine every two or three days. See how much more wholesome it leaves your mouth. How it sweetens your breath. Listerine Pharmaceutical Co., St. Louis, Mo.

SAN JOSE, March 2 (UP)—Vigorously ripping into testimony of Dr. A. W. Meyer, head of the department of anatomy at Stanford University, defense attorney, Leo Friedman late today succeeded in shaking damaging technical statements in David Lamson's fourth murder trial.

Early in the day Dr. Meyer testified that he believed blows "from a blunt instrument" caused the skull fractures and lacerations which resulted in Allen Thorpe Lamson's death.

His statement directly supported state claims that Lamson beat his wife to death with an eight-inch length of iron pipe.

Dr. Meyer admitted under further cross questioning that he did not believe that blows from the pipe could have caused the extensive lacerations found on Mrs. Lamson's head.

Roosevelt Tax Message To Be Given Solons

WASHINGTON, March 2.—UP—Congressional leaders moved swiftly tonight to safeguard and give a clear track to President Roosevelt's new billion dollar tax program, as New Deal foes thundered demands for more economy and less spending in government.

Mr. Roosevelt barred himself to all callers today in order to complete the tax message which he will send to Capitol Hill tomorrow. At the same time, Chairman Robert Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, of the house ways and means committee said a tentative tax bill probably would be introduced soon after the White House communication is read.

MORE TAXES

The tentative bill, he said, probably will call for $788,000,000 in additional taxes. This amount would include $120,000,000 to finance the new federal bond charges, $500,000,000 to finance the administration of the new farm program and $168,000,000 in so-called "windfall" taxes levied against unpaid process ing taxes.

Doughton explained that the object in offering a tentative bill in which proposed new levies may be restricted to limited categories would be to facilitate hearings by barring a mass of extraneous testimony that usually is presented when a tax bill is brought forward.

CALL COMMITTEE

"Even if we do this," Doughton warned, "it will not mean that the committee favors the rates in the tentative measure. And if such a bill is offered, we will write it. It will not be a bill sent up from downtown."

He indicated he might call his committee together tomorrow or Wednesday.

His arrest in Corona followed a tip given authorities by his landlady who said he had bragged of "killing a fellow named Ignacio seven years ago."

Barnaman Is Given Time To Fix Hall

At the meeting of the Council last evening, J. L. Barnaman, owner of Barnaman's hall on Nineteenth street, was given 30 days in which to place his hall in condition to conform to the building ordinance or the City of Richmond would take steps to have the structure condemned.

Building Inspector A. J. Hurley, said at the present time there was only one exit at the rear, whereas there should be two, and the one exit entered into a store room on the first floor.

Councilman Sam Ripley, a member of the building committee who made an inspection of the structure, said that Mr. Barnaman desired some time in which to make the necessary alterations.

Councilman George F. Imbach said he thought the request was a reasonable one, and made a motion granting the 30 days. The motion was then adopted.

to police report, rode it a few blocks and then took a Chevrolet car, the property of R. Markley of Manila and Norwalk streets, El Cerrito, which they found unlocked and with the key left in it.

The boys then started back in this car to Richmond, but made the wrong turn and went the other way.

Near Madena while driving about 60 miles an hour they side-swiped a tree, the car turned over twice and was completely demolished. The boys escaped without a scratch. Police say they found another car without its owner, took it and went on into Madena. Here they ran out of gas and then went to a warehouse where they saw a huge pile of sacks of grain. For no reason at all they slashed all the bottom sacks so that the grain ran out out thus toppling the whole pile and doing about $500 worth of damage.

Police charge that they stole gasoline and drove on, until the car stuck in the mud when they got out and began the long trudge toward home. An officer of the State highway patrol picked them up to inquire why they were not in school whereupon the whole sad story was confessed and the boys brought back to the Albany jail.

Yesterday Kenneth was released into the custody of his step-father, Alfred Kline of San Francisco, long enough to attend his father's funeral, after which he was returned to Albany.

Driver Appeals For Probation

MARTINEZ, March 2.—Roy Vivien, 42, of Richmond, today had filed application for probation with Superior Judge A. F. Bray, after pleading guilty to a felony charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, and failure to stop after an accident.

It is claimed that Hattie Spelman and Herman Nola of Richmond were injured several weeks ago in an accident with a car driven by Vivien.

Judge Bray referred the probation application to Dr. Thomas A. Boyer, county probation officer.

She was also granted $50 monthly alimony and permission to resume her maiden name of Gertrude Viano.

Routine Business Of City Council

Departmental reports occupied a portion of the time of the councilmen at their meeting last evening.

The San Francisco Bridge Company was given an extension of 42 days on their contract to repair the tender system at the wharf. The delay in the arrival of the piles from the north was caused by the San Francisco maritime strike.

Writ Denial To Be Appealed To District Court

MARTINEZ, March 2.—Attorney James F. Hoey, counsel for Leroy Bussey, 37, was preparing to make an immediate application to the Appellate court today for a writ of habeas corpus to effect Bussey's freedom from the county jail following action of Superior Judge A. F. Bray in refusing a plea for a writ this morning.

Hoey contended that preliminary examination testimony failed to show reasonable or probable cause for holding Bussey for trial for murder. He said Gray disavowed, saying that testimony of Deputy Sheriff Louis Rampoldi was to the effect that Bussey had conspired with Lewis Sly, 38, and Falls Sutton, 50, to secure a gun they knew the aged man possessed and that it revealed that Bussey had aided in a search for the weapon.

"There is sufficient to move to warrant him being held for trial. Petition is denied," Judge Bray declared.

APES SEPARATE TRIAL

Hoey then asked for an immediate, separate trial for the defendant but the plea was allowed to lapse. Judge Bray stating that trial would be granted just as soon as the calendar permits.

This afternoon Hoey asked and secured a postponement in pleading time for Bussey until next Monday.

Attorneys George Carmody and Francis Collins, appointed by the court to represent Sly and Sutton, also asked and secured a delay in pleading time until next Monday over the objection of his chief attorney Francis Healey.

Judge Bray said that because of the nature of the case he favored an early trial for the trio.

Board Fears Ordinance Too Broad In Terms

MARTINEZ, March 2.—The proposed county ordinance making it a misdemeanor to be intoxicated on a public highway proved too broad in its application, it was found, when scrutinized by the Board of Supervisors today. While the board was in accord with the idea, it was feared that that under the measure, as drafted, some grave injustices might be possible. In consequence the matter was laid over for two weeks by which time the necessary changes will have been made.

A claim of Justice of the Peace L. F. Grover for an increase of salary, based on the population of San Pablo township, was denied.

A donation of $150 was voted for the celebration marking the completion of the Martinez harbor.

PACT AS PREDICATED

Remaining provisions will be expedited, making possible the initialing of an Anglo-Franco-American pact to which Italy and Japan will be invited to adhere.

Great Britain proposes to negotiate identical bilateral treaties with Germany and Soviet Russia. It was learned that Germany will be assured that Russia will be invited to sign a bilateral treaty with Britain instead of participating in a multilateral agreement.

QUESTION LEFT OPEN

Meanwhile the government confirmed that on Saturday, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, German ambassador Sir Horace Rumbold, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and announced his government's intention of negotiating an Anglo-German naval agreement on the basis of a text being evolved in the latter's limping naval conference.

The question was left open as to whether the proposed Anglo-German accord will be effected regardless of the fate of the treaty on negotiation between the other two powers.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Behind Secretary Roper's dismissal of two experts on steamship inspection last week is a long and secret story of intrigue which goes to the roots of the Morris Castle and other tragedies of the sea.

Commander H. McCoy Jones and Frederick L. Adams, both of the Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection, had fought a hard-fisted, sometimes ruthless battle against the big shipping companies to prevent further tragedies. And they were supported by J. B. Weaver, head of the Bureau.

Both young, both ex-naval officers, with the independent means, they had joined Roper's Commerce Department for the sole purpose of preventing sea tragedies, did not care whether they retained their jobs or not. Politics was the last thing they worried about.

Shortly after they joined Mr. Roper's organization, however, they found that politics mattered a great deal. Also they began to uncover what every sea tragedy has pointed to, ineffectual inefficiency and graft in the steamboat inspection service.

LIFE BOAT INSPECTION
 The navigation laws, for instance, require that every lifeboat shall be inspected before a vessel departs. A proper inspection requires that it shall be swung out on its davits and lowered in the water to test leaks. But almost never is a full inspection made. Bureau inspectors are content to swing out one boat and let the rest go. Other inspection is on the same level.

Probing into this, Jones and Adams suspected that gratuities were being given to some of their inspectors. It was difficult to prove this, but they found inspectors living beyond their income, also receiving various intangible benefits from steamship owners.

STEAMSHIP OWNERS' LOBBY
 Even more important, they found that when honest inspectors did insist on a thorough fulfillment of their duties, the steamship owners, who maintain one of the most efficient jobs in Washington—immediately went over their heads to the higher-ups in the Commerce Department.

The Young Bloods in the Navigation Bureau immediately started a reform. One of these reforms was to pay inspectors more money, eliminate graft temptation.

FLOATING FIRETRAPS
 Another condition, pregnant with tragedy, that the Young Bloods unearthed was the state of American coastwise and inner waterway vessels.

Many of these, including the ships used on some of the most popular excursions to New England and the South, was characterized by McCoy and Adams as "floating firetraps" which would sink "if one hole was poked in them."

Referring to excursion steamers, they reported: "It is felt that sooner or later we may look for a recurrence of the Slocum disaster in which eight hundred lives were lost. Of the 944 vessels plying on the rivers, harbors, and sounds of the

NEW ARMY ORDER

There is a new Army order, says the San Francisco Chronicle. It is, Thou shalt not speak disrespectfully of boondoggling.

Major General Johnson Hagood, wearer of the American Distinguished Service medal and decorations of the French Legion of Honor and the Order of the Crown of Italy for overseas service, loses his post because he didn't know of that rule. He couldn't have known of it because it has been put into the code after he testified before a subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee. In a plain, blunt, soldierly way he told the committee what everybody knows and most people are saying about boondoggling.

The General's crime consisted of a plea for the Army to spend Government money so that there will be something to show for it. He urged that some of the money be put into housing at Army posts into steel and stone—something that would be a national asset.

He did not seek additional money for the Army, merely pleaded for the right to spend profitably instead of wasting money on worthless projects.

But the General committed an unpardonable sin he told the truth about boondoggling.

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, March 2.—Lucy Monroe, radio singer, has a tough time keeping the peace with her mother, who was the former Anna Laughlin of musical comedy fame. Coming home from a recent broadcast, Lucy found this note pinned to her pillow: "Darling, you speak English. Why not try singing it?" . . . I was at a party with Theodore Metz only a few weeks before his death. The 87-year-old composer of "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" was right on his toes, insisting upon his highball along with all the young fellows. His long, flowing white moustache wasn't exactly in the modern Park Avenue manner, but the venerable musician's spirit was still keen. . . . One of the busiest showmen in town is Max Gordon. He has two hits on the Midway, two shows on the road, and another one coming in. Broadway wonder boys change with the seasons.

FEINT Jack Dempsey has to be careful about people coming up to him in his restaurant and taking a look at his sturdy chin. Dempsey is on public view at his Eighth Avenue spot most of the time, and this has led to the development of a peculiar complex in some of his customers. With the greatest hero of the ring within easy reach, certain young blades, especially when they have a drink or two beyond their limit, are inspired to demonstrate their pugilistic prowess by edging up to the friendly Jack and letting go with a right swing.

One fellow recently chased the Vanessa Maiter all over the restaurant. He had made a $100 wager that he could sock Dempsey on the jaw and get away with it. Jack ducked three times and finally had to barricade himself in his private office in order to escape.

Another time, an enthusiastic tippler, burling a serving plate tightly against his chest, called Dempsey over and dared him to take the plate away from him. Jack smiled, asked him if he wanted the plate, and on receiving the wobbly customer's affirmative reply, told him to take it home as a souvenir.

Dempsey could demolish these bad boys with a blow—but he's running a restaurant, not a prize ring.

EXERCISE New Yorkers are going in for hissing and cheating at public performances in a big way. I recently mentioned the fist fight between twoirate patrons at a performance of "Mid-West" but this is only one symptom of a spreading custom.

ings it was shipping away from shore, out into the turbulent deeper waters, but the couple on deck were aware of it all.

THEN suddenly the lights inside flicked out. The boat, caught up by the swift current off shore, was now careening madly out into the river. Doors banged. There was the sound of furniture toppling, of bottles and glasses in the air, crashing to the floor.

Nightmare screamed, and a wave from Vincent's arms, tried the door through which they had come out on deck. It held fast, backed by some object on the other side. Vincent tried his strength against the door out without avail.

Nightmare reached for his head. Words now were useless, for in the dark he could not see her lips. The water was black and swirling. They looked at it and at each other. Both were expert swimmers out in these mad waters they would likely be helpless.

They returned to the door, threw their weight against it together, but it did not budge. They were backed with steel. Could they have got through it and into the passageway they could have reached the deck on the other side of the boat, toward the shore and called for help.

But on this side they were completely cut off. Houseboat Row was snug into itself as Christmas Eve neared midnight. Sounds without were drowned within the homes by the blare of radios and the hilarity of celebration. And no one would be venturing to cross the river in a skiff through a gale like this one.

Wind and current were now carrying the houseboat nearer and nearer to the bridge, and Nightingale knew that destruction awaited it there. Without guidance, it would crack against a pier, splintering itself with the fierce impact of wood against yielding steel and concrete. Like figures coming alive out of a nightmare, the bridge piers loomed grim and powerful as the barge lurched toward them.

Nightingale shuddered—covered her face with her hands.

As they stood there, heads close and arms locked, The Merry Gentlemen lurched. They did not notice. It lurched again, more violently. Unloosed from its moor-

British Are Prepared For Oil Sanctions

GENEVA, March 2.—UP—Great Britain threw the full weight of her prestige behind oil sanctions proposals tonight in a virtual ultimatum to Premier Benito Mussolini to make peace with Ethiopia or face stoppage of Italy's petroleum supply.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, hurriedly entering a meeting of the League of Nations committee of 13 a half hour late after consulting London by telephone, electrified his colleagues by announcing his government's readiness to apply an oil embargo, regardless of the United States attitude.

The committee had barely recovered from its surprise at the peace move of French Foreign Minister Pierre Etienne Flandin.

He had made "peace before sanctions" the slogan of the committee—the "sanctions general staff"—by persuading it to explore the path of peace before voting on sanctions.

The sharp Franco-British divergence excited speculation—was thinking Flandin, believing the time ripe for new peace efforts, had informed Eden of his plan.

ALLERGY CAUSES UNUSUAL SENSITIVITY

There are at least ten million people in the United States and Canada who find it best to try to avoid certain foods to which they are unusually sensitive. For example, some people can not eat strawberries without causing hives; others avoid eggs; while some react in an exaggerated manner to milk. Shellfish are found capable of producing unpleasant symptoms in others. Probably any food that you might mention will be difficult for some one to tolerate. This peculiar reaction which one may develop after using special foods is the basis of the saying, "One man's meat is another man's poison."

The strange and unusual sensitiveness which some individuals develop toward certain foods is called "allergy" and refers to an exaggerated reaction to foods which are wholesome to others. This abnormal reaction may be mild or extreme and when the reaction is severe, the patient may find that very small amounts of the offending food will be sufficient to cause vomiting, abdominal pain, diarrhea, or even shock. In other cases the food to which the individual is sensitive may cause such symptoms as: skin disorders such as eczema, hives, or rash; attacks of hay fever or asthma; and swellings in the body which produce puffiness. Headache and dizziness are other common symptoms arising as the result of eating substances to which one is allergic.

The foods most frequently found to cause trouble are the proteins such as egg and milk; however, non-protein foods may also be responsible. When the sensitivity is unduly severe it is not always necessary that the food actually be eaten—for example, a baby who is unusually sensitive to egg may become ill by being kissed on the lips by one who has just eaten egg. This may seem a little far-fetched, but it has been known to happen.

It is estimated that over ten million people in the North American continent are allergic. Those who react to substances contained in foods which they do not eat ordinarily are the most fortunate, while those who undergo the most distress are naturally those who react to very common food.

The symptoms are not always due to eating a food as they may also result if certain substances are breathed in, or enter through a break in the skin. Thus, if a different pollen such as ragweed or pollen may set up sufficient irritation in a susceptible person to cause an attack of hay fever or asthma. Or, for example, feather pillows dandruff from animals, fur, dust, smoke, rice, roses, ink and many other substances are frequently blamed by people who are allergic and who try to avoid them.

Another group of subjects will state that they exhibit unusual reactions to heat or cold; that they can not stand heat well will suffer during the summer, and those who can not be comfortable if they are cold, will find the wintering months unbearable.

In still another group of people, it was found that nervous tension, excitement, or irritation will be sufficient to cause the outbreak of allergic symptoms such as hives, itching of the skin, and asthma.

It has been my experience that many of those suffering from food allergy will be helped by the fruit juice fast. The probable explanation is that the calcium in the fruit juice is the agent of value, inasmuch as a lack of calcium appears to be responsible to some extent for the production of the unusual sensitivity to food which I have described.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Gum Boils)

Question: Mrs. Mary G. asks: "My little boy is troubled with gum boils. Could you give me a little information about them?"

Answer: A gum boil is in the nature of an abscess, forming on the gum tissue. The boil is very painful and causes swelling and, at first, redness of the affected part. As the boil gets ready to discharge, the swelling softens. After the boil breaks and the pus is thrown out, the gum usually heals readily. The underlying cause of gum boils is a systemic toxemia and I would advise that you have your child follow a body cleansing regimen. Also have attention given to the teeth as gum boils have a tendency to form near a tooth which is decayed. In other patients, these abscesses are likely to form near the roots of dead teeth. The permanent cure of gum boils depends upon speedy use of the elimination of wastes, having the patient use a sensible, well-balanced diet, and proper care of the teeth.

(Glasses)

Question: Miss Martha Y. B. writes: "I had my eyes examined and was told I need to wear glasses. Do you think glasses are really necessary?"

Answer: The best plan is for you to wear glasses if you are really nearsighted. In this way you will avoid needless eyestrain and a nervous headache to which so often develop when eyestrain is not relieved. I know where an eye defect is present and especially where it is a strain, it is trying to build up better health, I believe that wearing glasses is of the greatest value and the relief which follows when the eyes are no longer use unnecessary effort in using the eyes. I have often recommended that I consider proper care of the eyes so important that I include an eye examination as a regular part of any thorough physical examination.

Dislocation of a Joint Usually Due to Some Form of Violence

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

DISLOCATION may occur with almost any part or organ of the body. Any tendon or muscle may be displaced by violence. The different organs such as kidneys, liver, or heart may be in abnormal positions at birth or be shifted by external violence, but the usual meaning of dislocations is the persistent separation of the articular surface of bones of the joints.

It may be partial or complete, and is due to violence, to disease of the joint, or it is congenital, because of malformation of the joint surfaces. A partial dislocation occurs when the two surfaces of the bones of a joint are not completely separated and the ligaments are not torn.

In a complete dislocation the ligaments surrounding the joint are torn and the ends of the bones are completely separated. Dislocation occurs mostly in middle adult life. In children violence produces green stick fractures. They are more common in men than women, partly because of the more powerful muscular development in men and the nature of their occupations. The ball and socket joints are the ones which are more easily dislocated; particularly the shoulder and the hip. The hinge joints, such as the elbow, wrist, knee and ankle have less freedom of motion and are more difficult to separate.

Direct Blow Often Cause

The most frequent cause of a direct blow on the joint or a fall on the extended hand or a twist of the foot. Unusual muscular exertion while the arm is extended or uplifted may force the head of the humerus through its surrounding capsule and the ligaments are torn. The head of the bone cannot get out of a solid socket without tearing a slit in the surrounding ligaments.

The structures of the joint are injured and there is often much blood and fluid in the socket, the bone in its dislocated position lying in a pool of blood. Large vessels and nerves are seldom torn, but they may be severely compressed and cause partial paralysis. For this reason a dislocation must be reduced as soon as possible, because inflammation is set up in the old joint cavity and the whole area becomes glued together. The normal socket fills up with fibrous tissue and deforms the joint so that its easy functioning may be interfered with.

If the bones remain dislocated for several weeks or months the old socket fills up and the bones may become fixed in this new position. The ball and socket joints may act fairly well in their new position, but there is bound to be some difficulty and weakness. An unreduced dislocation of a hinged joint frequently becomes stiff or is left with only very limited motion.

Happens Easily for Some

There are some joints or some persons in which the ligaments surrounding some joints are so lax and weak that dislocations can occur with only slight violence or a little muscular effort in certain positions. The ligaments do not tear, they simply stretch.

A so-called "double jointed" person has these lax ligaments, the bones slipping in and out of the socket freely and without pain. The general symptoms of dislocation are pain, a feeling of a sickening character. The joint can be moved little, if any. There is a changed appearance in the part. The ends or head of the bone may be seen or felt in an unnatural position, and there is often marked deformity.

With a fracture the part can be moved, a dislocated joint is rigid. In case of any doubt an X-Ray examination should be made if possible. The treatment of dislocation consists in restoring the bones to their proper positions and holding them there.

Care should be taken not to use any violence, as blood vessels and nerves can be further injured. A little study and manipulation may tell just where the bone slipped through the capsule. It must go back the same way and by visualizing how the accident occurred the reverse movement may restore it.

Gentle massage to relax the muscles, careful manipulation with pressure at proper points, and traction at others will usually reduce a recent dislocation without more injury.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "Do real friends take turns at letter writing? Do they bargain, 'You owe me a letter,' 'I owe you a letter'—D. P."

ANSWER: Good friends do not, as a rule, count letters. They write when the impulse seizes them, in walking they transmit friendly gossip and write about things that will be of interest to the reader and bring him pleasure.

Profiles For Today

Senator Norris Is Leading Independent

By TALBOT LAKE

WHEN the United States Supreme Court decided in favor of the Tennessee River Valley Authority perhaps the happiest man of all those who rejoiced at the move was Senator George William Norris, of Nebraska. To Senator Norris it meant the successful conclusion of almost twenty years work on a project and general theory he has held very close to his heart—the supplying of cheap electric power through Government operation.

Of course, the Senator took the news in the same quiet way he has reacted to every emergency. Now in his seventies, he looks like a benign man who is content to let the world flow by him, but he is not deceived. Back of the casual talk and unobtrusive demeanor lurks fire.

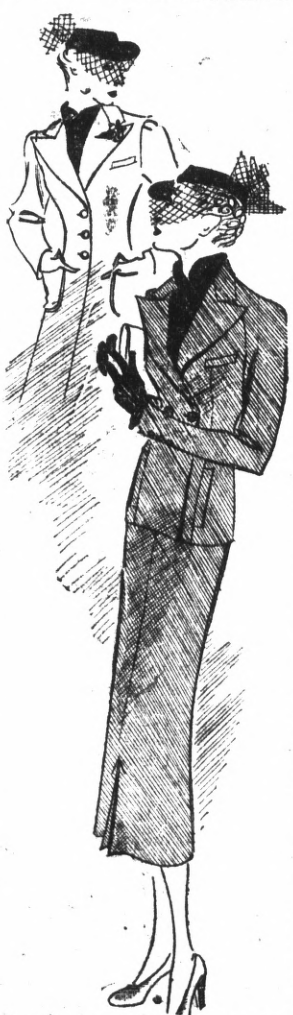

Norris is THE Independent of Independents. Nominally he is a Republican, but he has often opposed acts of Republican Presidents, especially when they pertained to the selling of power rights to private interests.

It all happened when he was a freshman in Congress. A vote was called to determine whether to call a vote on Washington's Birthday in 1903. Norris voted with the Democrats to observe the holiday, and thus his first act of insurgency was accomplished.

In 1910 he successfully broke the whip-hand of Uncle Joe Cannon, although he has admitted since it did no lasting good. He supported Theodore Roosevelt on the Bull Moose ticket, cast a vote against entering the World War, bolted his party ticket again in 1928 in favor of Alfred E. Smith and still again in 1932, when he actively stumped for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

During all this time Nebraska continued to elect him regularly on the Republican ticket. Nebraskaans like Senator Norris, and so do a lot of other people.

Special Party Calls for Girls To Pretty-Up

By JACQUELINE HUNT

EYE MAKE-UP for young girls? Of course! Why not—if you need it, or if you are having a very special party. Quite ordinary eyes can be made glamorous without changing the character of your face if you work out the little tricks especially becoming.

It takes patience and the right eye preparations, but the results will show such a pretty young person in your mirror you will be glad you spent the time practicing with your eyelash brush and eye shadow.

For school, tea, for any daytime occasion you may find an eyebrow pencil is all you need. Lengthen your eyebrows if they are very brief and darken them if they need it. The pretty young movie star, Julie Haydon, does not use eye make-up at all in the daytime, and at night she merely darkens the lashes a little and touches mascara to the longest hairs in her brows. By doing this she avoids a dark, definite line, yet the effect is youthful and flattering.

By all means do not use your eyelashes for evening if you wish to make your eyes appear brighter and more appealing. But you had better be careful to get a run-proof mascara so there will be no smudges if you accidentally rub your eyes.

There is a liquid eyelash darkener that will remain in place until you remove it with cream; also a waxy cream mascara that comes in a little tube and needs no moistening.

Eye shadow is permissible for evening if you want it, but it really isn't necessary. Apply just a little cream or petroleum jelly to your eyelids for a soft, natural-looking luster. You will not have to worry about removing it after the party. If you use a real shadow choose a rather soft shade like a silvery blue, bronze or dull blue violet.

Keep the color near your lashes and shade it softly upward and outward with your fingertips. If your eyes are small and rather close together you can make your eyes seem wider and larger by starting the color at the center of the lid and extending it nearly to the outer tip of your eyebrow. A horizontal line drawn outward from the corner of your eye about three-eighths of an inch, then blended with the fingertip helps the illusion.

We promised to talk about lipstick today. Making up your mouth is a delicate job. Young girls seldom neglect color except for parties. They do not use lipstick. Apply a little color in a soft, natural shade that harmonizes with your rouge, then smooth a little cream or pomade over it. Slide your lips together so the color will inside the lips with your fingertip. Bite your lips together now to remove the excess color.

If your lips do not have a natural vivid color, be more careful of your habits. Sleep eight or nine hours each night and get more exercise in the fresh air. A healthy young body and a good circulation will give you lips the older woman might well envy.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "My cheeks have enlarged pores and tiny red lines which, I have been told, are broken capillaries. I have never used cheek rouge, although I would like to do so. Will the rouge cause the pores to become more noticeable? How can I treat the broken capillaries?"—Wenda.

The enlarged pores may be caused from an over oily condition of your skin or from the misuse of your powder. If you use a good cream rouge and a liquid powder lotion the rouge will not cause the pores to enlarge more. Be sure to scrub your skin gently with a complexion brush and a bland soap at night to stimulate the skin and refine the pores. The broken capillaries should be treated by a dermatologist.

QUESTION: "The skin on my shoulders and upper arms is rough like gooseflesh. What can I do about it?"—M. J.

The skin tends to be a little thicker and hornier in these regions and if you allow it to become sluggish the little dead cells accumulate and give the effect you mention. Use a stiff-bristled bath brush and thick lather and do not be afraid to scrub when you have your evening bath. A few scrubbings will usually be sufficient to restore the skin to its former smoothness.

The Sticky Scissors

Dip the kitchen scissors into cold water from time to time when cutting such sticky foods as dates, marshmallows and raisins.

Man's World, But Style Is The Vegetable Is Easy To Cook Correct Way

By IRENE VAIL

New York—A digest of the sensational features of the current openings offers the following food for thought and shows that Paris has lost none of her cunning in creating novelties for women to wear. Many novel details register in all collections, such as tiny cups entirely covered with flower petals, worn as an accompaniment to suits that have petal ruffles or flowered belts, carved pottery ornaments, slashed sleeves, and jackets a la Margot.

It's still a man's world, and this applies to fashions as well as to other things. But Paris has not forgotten that, after all, her clothes are designed for women and there are still seeds and seeds of them who prefer to dress their part with the usual feminine allure. Molyneux, a man, seems to be determined to foster this spirit among us. He is quite definitely flower-minded in both detail and color, and runs largely to pleats and to the softer expressions of the mode.

As was to be expected, his homage was paid to the British court, much of his collection being in black and the half mourning shades. Much of the black is in sheer clinging fabrics dramatically accented by gloves, girdles, and flowers on the dress and flowered toques of deep parma violet, purple crimson, and jonquil yellow. Other ensembles reflect midnight blue with amethyst, purplish dark blue with pale pink accessories.

Molyneux launches jackets barely covering the low waistline, with wide shoulders. New Tanagra versions appear in pleated evening gowns. For Americans all suggestion of mourning is abolished by the touches of color introduced either in a belt or a bunch of flowers at the waistline or front corner matching up with plain suede slipper gloves.

VEGETABLES never get a break! Yet all they need to emerge with all of their fine texture and color and flavor is to be cooked as quickly as possible in a small amount of boiling, salted water. Watch your clock when you cook vegetables.

Be sure the water is boiling when you put them in, then when the clock says it is time they were done, test them. Turn off the heat, drain (keep the liquid for soups and sauces) and dress with plenty of melted butter, a speck of pepper and more salt, if it is needed.

With an unusually nice flavor and all of their color.

Buttered Beets It has been the custom to cook beets for a long period, unpeeled. Also, seamless cooking ware is easier to keep clean. That you can peel beets and cook them in 10 or 12 minutes. Shred 1 bunch peeled, raw beets. Put 2 cups water into a heavy saucepan that has a tight-fitting lid. Let the water come to a rapid boil, put in the beets and 1 tablespoon butter, cover and cook rapidly. At the end of 10 or 12 minutes the beets will be tender and there will be just enough butter sauce in the pan for serving. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Sweet Potato Puffs Blend 2 cups mashed sweet potato, 1 beaten egg, 1/3 cup coconut, 1 tablespoon grated orange rind, salt and pepper to taste. Drop by spoonfuls into deep fat and fry until golden brown on all sides. Drain on brown, unglazed paper and serve very hot.

Vegetable Plates Your vegetable dinners will be enjoyed more if you include eggs, cheese, a rich meat broth or chowder and a substantial dessert. Have as much contrast in color and flavor as possible and bring the vegetables to the table attractively arranged on a hot chop plate.

One interesting combination is a small snowy head of cauliflower as the center of the plate. Serve it with a hot tomato or rich green sauce. Surround it with green peas dressed with butter and heaps of diced or shredded beets.

Another good combination is bottled and shredded cabbage with Hollandaise sauce, on the center of your plate, surrounded by carrots cut into tiny sticks and given a glaze with melted butter and sugar, and these surrounded by tiny green lima beans dressed with butter.

When you are using your oven for a roast or baked bread or dessert, put your vegetables and seasonings into a covered casserole with a little moisture and let them cook slowly. They come out

MODERN WOMEN

A Mother Who Asks Why Her Son Doesn't Marry. He Knows Why

By MARIAN MAY'S MARTIN

THE match-making instinct is very strong in all women. It does not even stop at their sons, in spite of the erroneous idea many have that mothers are selfish creatures who begrudge their sons to other women.

"Why doesn't my son marry?" a mother asks me. She isn't able to believe this generation of young people is capable of weighing and measuring the advantages and disadvantages of marriage, or of facing the fact that marriage costs more than they care to pay for the privileges, even the pros and cons of contentment, it may bring.

"My dear Mrs. Martin: I am the mother of a son of twenty-five who has a steady position, with prospects of advancement. He should marry, and I have told him so. There is also another eligible young man in our family, his cousin, and a few nights ago I gave them both my views on the subject and listened as patiently as I could, to theirs. It seems, greatly to my surprise, that it isn't just because there is no particular girl in view, but that they both have very positive ideas about marriage and appear to be opposed to it—for them, I mean. Their general idea is that times have changed so that I don't realize the problems confronting them. The old, old argument—children invariably give their parents sooner or later. My boy's father was married to me at the time he was my son's age. He had no notions he was marrying too young, or that marriage should not be entered into before a man was established in business or well started on his career.

Should Be Married

"I think young men are better off married, and I should be much happier if my son would marry some nice girl. He claims he has a comfortable home with me—I am a widow—and that he sees no reason for assuming the responsibilities of married life—of children. In fact, he says it is harder and harder to get along in life and that a single man is free to accept any opportunity that comes his way, while a married one is bound to his job and dare not take any risk of losing it. In other words, these boys of mine seem more interested in getting ahead than in getting married. I cannot understand it. They both like girls well enough. Do you think they are voicing the opinion of the average young man? Girls, I know, are as eager, if not more so, to marry, for we have girls in our family and I know. What is the answer to this curious state of affairs? A Worried Mother."

The answer is not far off. It is to be found in the economic condition of the country and in the clear thinking of this son of yours and others like him.

Our girls are panicky because of the over-abundant girl crop which cannot be pined under, but must fight it out on the survival of the fittest rule. In a husband they see security, they very naturally set out with considerable deliberation to provide themselves with a pair of broad shoulders behind which to find a shelter from the rainy day.

See Nothing Secure

Our boys see nothing secure in marriage, nothing that appears to them on the asset side of the ledger. They know that life is to the swift, and are pretty well sold on the idea that he travels the fastest who travels alone. Of course, they like girls, but they don't care for clinging vines or more responsibilities. And they are keen enough to know marriage means responsibilities—a big, and probably many little, ones. One may love children enough not to want to rear them in poverty.

I think you should be proud of your son. He hasn't said he would never marry, just that he feels himself incapable of taking any interest in adding to his burdens at the moment. In all probability were your son intensely interested in one particular girl, who was working on him as girls will, she might knock down his powers of resistance. But being a free agent and clear-eyed enough to compare his lot with those of the men who had married, he sees the tremendous advantage his detachment gives him.

Let him alone. Nature lays plenty of traps for such men, we have his mother joining forces against him in a misguided belief it is better off married. That's a philosophical. Some men are, some men are not. It depends largely on whether they prefer personal happiness to success. Your son probably has a very good notion of what he wants out of life, and given a free hand, he is bound to get it.

Have You Tried This?

Run a little glycerine over the children's rubbers before you put them away. It will keep the rubber from drying out and they will last longer.

NEW BLOUSE

When shopping for new pots and pans make sure they have flat bottoms and that the handles are well balanced. Also, seamless cooking ware is easier to keep clean.

Rubber tile flooring is resilient, kind to tired feet, easy to clean, and therefore suitable for breakfast room, sunporch and corridors. But not for the bathroom, as it gets slippery when wet.

shooting out the testimony.

GOOD DEFENSE WITNESS

Mrs. Grace Belshaw, was an ideal witness for the defense. She is assistant to County Purchasing Agent Morrow and when shown the claim which is the basis of the accusation against Mrs. McCord was emphatic in her declarations that it was presented by Mrs. Iona Booth and the check, $68.98, was personally delivered to the latter. All attempts to shake her testimony and have her admit that the claim was sent by mail, proved futile. Mrs. Belshaw insisting that Mrs. Booth not only received the check in person but receipted for it in her presence.

It will be recalled that the testimony at the trial showed that the claim, purporting to be expense money advanced to Mrs. Jackson for her expenses to the home of her niece in Moffat, Col., was paid from the revolving fund in the office of the purchasing agent.

TELLS HER STORY

Then came the crucial moment for Mrs. McCord when Attorney Carlson called her name and told her to be sworn and take the witness stand. She first told, in answers to questions of her appointment by the Board of Supervisors on January 2, 1930 as social service worker and of her resignation in January of 1935. She left the county in the latter part of that month going to Los Angeles where she secured a job with the S.E.R.A.

"Prior to that time, had you ever met Mrs. Ida Jackson?"

"Yes, in the month of October, 1934."

"Did you ever meet her prior to the execution of the will and the assignment of the diamonds, which have been introduced in this case?"

"Never."

"When did you first meet her?"

"I met her in Mrs. Booth's office in Richmond. She was there and I was called in and introduced to her."

"Did you have any conversation or discussion with Mrs. Booth about the Jackson will and assignment?"

"Yes, she told me about having the will and the assignment drawn by Attorney Will S. Roberson with the idea of getting the county reimbursed for monies expended for Mrs. Jackson, she having been granted relief in the sum of $25 cash monthly. Mrs. Booth said she hoped to be able to send Mrs. Jackson to her niece in Colorado; that she was old and needed personal attention and the niece had agreed to take care of her."

"Was the subject of the diamonds discussed?"

"Yes."

"When did you first see the assignment?"

"On November 19, 1934. It was on that date that I took the money to Mr. Roberson's office so he could redeem the diamonds from the Goetz who had them as a pledge for a loan. I had phoned to Mr. Roberson and asked him in even anyone questioned the transaction or what right I had to dispose of the jewels, what answer could I make. He then said that he had an assignment in his office executed by Mrs. Jackson."

"What then did you do?"

"Miss Armato, Mrs. Booth's stenographer, went to Mr. Roberson's and got the assignment."

"What next did you do?"

"Mrs. Booth, Miss Armato and myself drove to Mrs. Jackson's home in El Cerrito where I read the assignment to her."

"Did Mrs. Jackson sign the assignment at that time?"

"I do not recall."

"You got the diamonds from Mr. Roberson?"

"Yes."

"How much did you give him?"

"The sum of $368.98."

"Then what happened?"

"The next day I started out to dispose of the diamonds. I first went to the Remedial Loan Company in Oakland. They offered me only $200. I was very much surprised as I had been informed by Mrs. Booth that they were very valuable, worth $2,500. I then went to the Morton Jewelry Company and Pfenburg's in Oakland where the best offers I received were $240 in one place and $245 in the other. While at Morton's a clerk told me that he believed the Remedial Loan Company would be more liberal and I took them there the next day. They offered me $300. A brooch surrounded by pearls was not included in the jewelry as it was a gift from Mrs. Jackson's daughter to her, was prized very highly by the old lady and Mrs. Booth had given it to her."

"Did you pawn the diamonds at that time?"

"No, I went back there on November 26th and secured the loan as I found that it was the best I could do."

"After you pawned them, you were $68.98 short?"

"That is true yes."

"Now referring back to the will and assignment, the entire transaction was handled by Mrs. Booth, was it not?"

"Yes."

"Who consulted Mr. Roberson about these matters?"

"Mrs. Booth."

"I now will show you a claim, People's Exhibit No. 4. Will you state whether you prepared, filed and presented this claim for payment?"

"No, Mr. Carlson, I did not."

"After November 19th, when you see Mrs. Jackson again?"

"On November 27th in Mrs. Booth's office, a couple of hours before Mrs. Jackson left for Colorado."

"What was the object in sending her to Colorado?"

"The dear old lady needed personal care. Mrs. Booth had found a niece in Colorado who had offered her a home and the care she was so vitally in need of. In addition it would save the county the $25 a month we were paying her."

"Did you ever put her back on the county relief rolls again?"

"No, I did not."

"Do you recall a meeting of the grand jury before which you appeared as a witness?"

"Yes."

"Where were you living at the time that you received the summons to appear before the grand jury?"

"In Los Angeles."

"What were you doing in Los Angeles?"

"I had secured a job as case supervisor with the S.E.R.A."

"How long did you hold that position?"

"A month lacking two days."

"What happened to you?"

"I was called to the main office and my attention was called to three letters that had been received, telling about the loss of my position in Martinez. I was told that my work was satisfactory but in view of the letters that I would have to go."

"Did they tell you the names of the signers of the letters?"

"Yes."

"Did you see the signatures?"

"No."

"Tell us the names of the signers as given to you."

"Mr. William Lewis, foreman of the grand jury, Helen Montegri, and Louisiana Scott." (Helen Montegri was head of the northern division of the S.E.R.A. and Louisiana Scott was rural supervisor in the office of County Superintendent of Schools B. O. Wilson.)

"Did you receive a notice to appear before the grand jury?"

"Yes."

"And you responded to it?"

"Yes."

"Who paid your fare?"

"I did myself."

"Where did you get the money?"

"It was part of the $35 I received for my last two weeks work for the S.E.R.A."

"You got into Martinez on a Wednesday, I believe?"

"Yes."

"Did you go to the chambers of Judge Johnston that day?"

"Yes, I went there to use the phone to get in touch with my attorney before I went before the grand jury."

"After you left the grand jury room where did you go?"

"I went to a restaurant where I spent a couple of hours, eating and resting. I had had a trying day and had been sick and while there I determined to go to the home of some friends in Sacramento and get a few days' rest and quiet."

"Then where did you go?"

"To the depot."

"Did you go to Sacramento?"

"Yes."

"From there where did you go?"

"It was late at night when we got to Sacramento. I looked up the telephone number of my friends in the phone book, but decided I would not bother them. On the way, to Sacramento there was a young couple who were on their way to Reno to be married and that planted the idea in my mind of going there."

"Did you remain there?"

"I stayed there that day and took the bus the next day for Salt Lake City."

"What was your mental condition? Mrs. McCord?"

"I was sick and completely worn out and I wanted an opportunity to rest. I had been up for two nights under very trying conditions and I was badly upset by the fact that my family refused to accompany me while I appeared before the grand jury."

"What name did you use in Salt Lake City?"

"Ruth Wilson. I had used that name before in writing articles."

"When did you first know that you had been indicted?"

"In the latter part of May or the first of June last year when I read in an Antioch paper which I found in the Salt Lake City library that I was wanted here."

"When you met Sheriff Miller in Salt Lake City did you stand on your rights as to extradition?"

"No."

"Did you see Sheriff Miller the day you were in Reno?"

"No, Mr. Carlson, I did not."

"Did you ever present this claim (showing it to witness) on the 5th day of December, 1934, for payment?"

"No."

CROSS-EXAMINATION

Deputy Rex Boyer conducted the cross-examination with an occasional question from District Attorney Healey.

The first question addressed to the witness was:

"Did you go to Sacramento instead of returning to Los Angeles?"

"Having lost my position I had packed up my things, given up my small apartment and could see no use in going back there."

"Did you have any friends in Reno, in Salt Lake City?"

"No."

"Were you advised to leave Martinez?"

"No."

"When you read you were wanted, why did you not advise Sheriff Miller?"

"I was very sick and under treatment and wanted to earn enough money to come back and prove my innocence of the charge."

"You were living in fear of being apprehended and wasn't that the cause of your illness?"

"No."

"What upset you?"

"Losing my job and the fear of going to the penitentiary was enough to upset anyone, Mr. Boyer."

"You remember while before the grand jury that an indictment was being considered?"

"Yes."

"And you stood on your constitutional rights and refused to answer any questions?"

"The question was stricken out on motion of Attorney Carlson."

The examiner then took Mrs. McCord over the history of the diamond transaction, her conversations with Mrs. Booth relative to the same and grilled her as to whom authorized the presentation of the claim. It was the contention of the witness that while not putting any money directly out of her pocket except a sum which she gave Mrs. Jackson the day of her departure the entire transaction with Mrs. Jackson was for the purpose of benefitting the county and the money represented in the claim was the amount she was out on the deal.

The witness reiterated in response to questions that she had not presented the claim to the county but it had been by Mrs. Booth but that she had approved it like thousands of other claims that passed through her hands with no thought of the significance of the amount involved. She admitted that she did not advance fare for Mrs. Jackson.

"Did you think you had a right to be reimbursed?" continued the examiner.

"Yes. The transaction was undertaken for the benefit of the county and I considered it was a good deal for the county. If I had been putting in the claim personally I would have written it as it was presented."

Testimony given by Mrs. McCord before a joint meeting of the grand jury and the supervisors, contradictory to that she had just given on the stand was read to her and she admitted having given it.

Her ordeal was ended by Attorney Carlson asking her if she prepared the receipt that Mrs. Jackson signed acknowledging receiving $68.98 for expenses for her trip to Colorado to which she replied, "that Mrs. Booth did and her denial that she had directed Mrs. Booth to prepare the receipt."

The defense rested and the prosecution had no more witnesses to offer so adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock this morning at which time argument will be heard.

The case is not expected to reach the jury until late this afternoon.

MORNING SESSION

The morning session, or as much as there was of it, after the attorneys had finished their more than an hour conference, produced one of the major developments of the trial: the dismissal of two of the three counts of the indictment.

This action was taken after lengthy argument by Robert Collins of defense counsel and District Attorney Healey and his trial assistant and deputy, Rex Boyer.

The hour discussion in Judge Bray's chambers, prior to opening of court and lasting for an hour and five minutes, finally resolved itself into a stipulation, which was read to the jury by Judge Bray, immediately after court convened.

The object was to submit proof for the sustaining of the second count of the indictment, and for which purpose Judge Bray had last week given the prosecution permission to re-open its case.

The text of the stipulation was as follows:

"It is stipulated that during the year 1934 Ruth W. McCord was employed by the County of Contra Costa as County Welfare Worker during the entire year, and that her duties as such County Welfare Worker were to investigate every applicant for relief from the funds of such county and to supervise by periodical visitation every person receiving such relief; to devise ways and means for placing persons unable to maintain themselves to self-support and to keep full and complete records of such investigation, supervise relief and re-habilitation as shall be prescribed by the State Department of Social Welfare; that People's Exhibit 4 was paid by a check drawn by J. H. Morrow, purchasing agent, being People's Exhibit 5, out of a revolving fund which had been provided for J. H. Morrow, county purchasing agent, out of public moneys, of the County of Contra Costa;

"That the revolving fund so drawn upon by said J. H. Morrow was replenished after disbursement by claim filed by J. H. Morrow with the Board of Supervisors; that it was the practice during that period for said J. H. Morrow to pay from the said revolving fund upon presentation claims approved by Mrs. McCord, as County Welfare Worker, or upon the presentation of claims of the heads of other departments."

"That the signature, Ruth W. McCord on People's Exhibit 4 is the true signature of the defendant, Ruth W. McCord, and was written by her."

It took a very short time to read the stipulation, less than a couple of minutes in fact. The jury had not had time to get comfortably ensconced in their chairs, when the defense opened its attack on the first and third counts of the indictment. Then it was a case of the nine women and three men walking right out again while the arguments were in progress. The presentation of the arguments lasted until five minutes to twelve when one witness, C. J. Rodgers of the Remedial Loan Company of San Francisco was put on the stand. Every question asked him was objected to and successfully so by the prosecution, so that officially or legally speaking, he might as well not have appeared. However the questions asked by Attorney Tom Carlson would have proved, if answered, that the diamonds were still held by the Remedial Loan Company and are subject to being redeemed at any time by either Mrs. Jackson, their legal owner, or the county.

MOTION FOR DISMISSAL

The formal motion, made by Attorney Collins, was for a dismissal of the first and third counts of the indictment, which charged that Mrs. McCord as a public official unlawfully converted county moneys to her own use. It was the contention of Collins that Mrs. McCord was not only not a public official at the time of the alleged embezzlement of county funds, but simply an employee of the county and had no control or disposition of county money; that in order for the accusation to stand, it must be proven that she took the funds while acting in a fiduciary capacity and that the prosecution had adduced no testimony or evidence to sustain such a contention. The allegation of the indictment set forth that the alleged embezzlement by Mrs. McCord was in the capacity of a public officer who had charge of the safekeeping and disbursement of public money. On the contrary he alleged Mrs. McCord was simply an employee of the county, had control over no county money and that J. H. Morrow, county purchasing agent, to whom the claim for $68.98 was presented, paid the money out of a county revolving fund and that Mrs. McCord received it as a private individual.

The same line of argument was presented in attacking the third count of the indictment—that Mrs. McCord was not a public officer, that it had not been shown by the prosecution that there had been any violation of a public trust; also that the prosecution had failed to show that she came into possession of the money lawfully as a public officer and then had unlawfully converted it to her own use.

HEALEY ARGUES

District Attorney Healey contended that it would have been impossible for Mrs. McCord to have presented a claim to Morrow, the purchasing agent had she not been acting in a public capacity. Deputy Boyer tried to show that the sections of the penal code under which the indictment was brought, had been amended and that the citations argued by Collins were not applicable, but under the amended sections, the language was broad enough to sustain the prosecution's contention. However cases showed that the principle laid down that there must be violation of a public fiduciary relation in order to sustain such charges, was shown to be still part of the law.

Judge Bray in granting the motion for a dismissal of the first and third counts said that it was incumbent upon the prosecution to have shown that that money came into Mrs. McCord's hands lawfully and then had been unlawfully converted by her to her own use. To the contrary he said, the evidence clearly showed that it came into her possession unlawfully, which in itself was the crime of which she was guilty, and not through the violation of any public trust. He therefore found that the evidence did show that a crime had been committed as charged in the two counts but not in the capacity of a public officer, as alleged by the prosecution.

THE COUNTS DISMISSED

The first count of the indictment, dismissed yesterday was in substance:

official at the time of the alleged embezzlement of county funds, but simply an employee of the county and had no control or disposition of county money; that in order for the accusation to stand, it must be proven that she took the funds while acting in a fiduciary capacity and that the prosecution had adduced no testimony or evidence to sustain such a contention. THE COUNTS DISMISSED

The first count of the indictment, dismissed yesterday was in substance:

N. Y. STRIKE PEACE PLAN IS REJECTED

ed, charged with disorderly conduct.

NO BUILDING SERVICES

Mayor Laguardia summoned J. Bambrick, head of the local union, George Scallie, president of the International Union, and Edward C. Meguire, union counsel, to city hall. With them went William D. Rawlins, executive secretary of the Realty Advisory Board, to speak for the organization whose responsibility is to keep elevators running and furnaces burning.

No accurate estimate was available on the number of buildings left without service. Bambrick contended 5669 buildings had been left without service after 71,000 men had walked out. Taking his own figures, that would mean that the strike is about 50 per cent effective because he had planned to call 140,000 workers.

The bureau of operations at police headquarters disputed Bambrick's figures, claiming only 800 buildings were crippled.

guage as follows:

"That on or about the 5th day of December, 1934, in the county of Contra Costa, State of California, the said Ruth McCord, being a person charged with the receipt, safeguarding, transfer and disbursement of public moneys, did then and there unlawfully, wilfully and feloniously and without authority of law appropriate the sum of Sixty-eight and ninety-eight hundredths ($68.98) dollars, the same being public moneys, to her own use."

The third count read: "That on or about the 5th day of December, 1934, in the County of Contra Costa, State of California, the said Ruth McCord, being an officer, director, clerk, servant and agent of the Board of Supervisors of the county, to-wit: director of the Social Service Department of said county did fraudulently appropriate to a use not in the due and lawful execution of her trust as said officer, director, clerk, servant and agent the sum of Sixty-eight and Ninety-eight Hundredths ($68.98) dollars, which said Ruth McCord had in her possession or under her control by virtue of said trust."

Impressive victory in famous economy run officially confirms Pontiac's superior economy!

THE annual Yosemite Valley Economy Run is the year's big test of economy claims—and here's what it revealed. Under American Automobile Association supervision, the 1936 Pontiac traveled 332 miles at an average of 23.9 miles per gallon (no oil added), defeating all entrants in its class.

That settles the matter of Pontiac's thrift. Pound for pound, you can't do better. Buy a Pontiac to save. Buy it for dependability. Buy it for anything else you value most in a car. You won't be disappointed. For Pontiac asks no odds of any car at any price.
